

Git Basics Group Exercise

Description

In the past, you have made you have submitted your projects by directly sharing the links to your project file.

This time, we would like you to choose a project that you've completed in the past, put its project files within a repository of its own, add a README.md file to describe the project, and then push the repository to GitHub. Lastly, Ensure that your repository is publicly accessible.

This exercise will set you up for such future project publications that you will make.